A ROUND OF TALK.

LIVELY CONTEST. -The contest for the Judgeship of this district made vacant by the death of Judge Patteson promises to develop into a lively scramble. It the first place it is up to the Governor to appoint a man to fill the position until an election can be held, and we understand that there are nearly a dozen applicants for the appointment. The appointment however, will not amount to much except that it will give the appointee a good start in case he wishes to stand for election, which is probable. The election to fill out the unexpired term of Judge Patteson will be held in November, or on the regular Presidential election day, so that the man appointed now will have only a short time to serve and enjoy the emoluments of the office. It is now almost certain that Washington county will furnish at least one candidate for the Democratic nomination for the office and from the present outlook he should win easily. Marion county is expected to furnish from one to half dozen candidates and doubtless the other two counties in the district will be heard from. The time is short in which to make the nomination and have the election, and some tall hustling may be looked for among the aspirants for the honor.

UNCERTAIN.—The race that has them all guessing as to the outcome in this scramble for county offices is the assessor's race. One may get a line on the other contests and have some kind of an opinion at least but in this assessor's race it is all guess work to pick the winner. There are six candidates from which an assessor and a deputy are to be chosen. The manner of choosing the nominees is rather peculiar. The candidates are to be voted for all over the county alike, but the county is to be divided into two districts, a northern and southern district. The candidate receiving the greatest number of votes and living in a certain district will be the nominee for assessor, and the one receiving the next highest number of votes and living in the other district will be the deputy assessor. The vote of the county will thus be so divided that it will be a hard matter to make a prediction as to the outcome.

TEACHERS.—The corps of teachers for the Springfield Graded School for the next term has been made up and is as follows: Prof. George Colvin, Principal; Mr. C. W. Stallings, Misses Jennie Redding, Ella Duncan, Emma Nunan and Sallie Carrico. Miss Bettie Irvine will be the music teacher. The new school building will be finished and thoroughly equipped by the time for the opening of the term in September and it will be second to none in convenience and completeness. The enrollment of pupils promises to be exceptionally large, and besides the children in this district, it is expected that the attendance will be greatly increased by the addition of a large number of pupils from a distance who will come here to take advantage of the good school facilities.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE—The Washington County Teachers' Institute will be held at the new Graded School building, this place, during the week beginning July 25th. All teachers of the county who are employed for the coming sessions are required to attend the Institute. A competent instructor will be on hand and an interesting program has been arranged. The teachers' institute is of great benefit to teachers and those expecting to teach and it should be well attended. County Superintendent J. W. Bush will as usual be in charge of affairs.

SETTLED IT.—Two candidates for the nomination for assessor have at least done their part towards simplifying matters in that race. Messrs. Blake Arnold and W. H. Wright being both from the same district—Mackville—decided to submit their claims to the voters of their home precinct as to who was the stronger candidate. Accordingly a private poll of the voters of the precinct was made and it was found that Mr. Arnold had the largest following and Mr. Wright withdrew, leaving the field, as far as Mackville is concerned, to Mr. Arnold. It would be much better if other candidates in that race could come to some such agreement.

LEWIS.—Hon. John W. Lewis is presiding over the circuit court at Greensburg, having been unanimously elected by the Greensburg bar to fill the position when Judge Patteson was found to be too ill to preside. Greensburg is Mr. Lewis' native town and he stands high in the estimation of the good people of that county.

MAYES. — Mr. T. Scott Mayes has returned from the National Democratic convention wearing a Parker badge and full of hopes for Democratic success this fall. He says that it was a great gathering and there was no lack of enthusiasm. He says that Judge Parker's announcement of his views on the money question after he had been nominated was a bold stroke, but met with the approval of the convention.

GOOD PEACH CROP.—Contrary to expectations on account of the late severe frosts this spring, there is a good peach crop in Washington county this year, Although thousands of fruit trees are planted by the farmers in this county every year this is not considered a good fruit raising county, for the reason perhaps, that the people become careless about caring for their orchards. When a good fruit year comes around however, the yield of peaches and apples partially repays the farmers for their outlay in trees. Some very fine early peaches have been brought to market so far (and it is said that the late crop also promises a good yield.

RELEASED—The citizens living along the new R. F. D. mail route which goes out of Mackville are wonderfully pleased with the new facilities afforded. The route covers a territory which has hitherto been suffering from the inconvenience of being a long distance from a post-office. A change has been made in the star route mail from Springfield to Mackville also, the wagon leaving this place early in the morning instead of in the afternoon in order to connect with the R. F. D. carrier. The R. F. D. is a growing and popular institution.

Brutally Tortured

A case came to light that for persistent and unmarciful torture has perhaps never been ebualed. Joe Golobick of Colusa, Cal., writes: "For 15 years I endured insufferable pain from Rheumatism and nothing relieved me, though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just as good for Liver and Kidney troubles and general debility Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by C J Haydon druggist.

Notice To The Public

The public is notified that my son Alvin Riley, who is not yet 21 years of age, is not a member of my household, and is not authorized to purchase anything on my account or to bind me in any way for any sum, and I will not pay debts or contracts made by him, and those dealing with him must look alone to him for fulfillment of their contracts.

Lebanon Locals.

From The Falcon.

Lebanon's second base ball team went to Springfield Wednesday and defeated the first nine of that city by a score of 3 to 2. A challenge has been made by the second to play the first nine of Lebanon, but as yet no agreement has been reached.

The big Holiness camp meeting which takes place annually near Alicston, begins today and will continue ten days, This was the first holiness camp meeting organized in the State and brings together thousands of people. Sam Jones, George Stuart and other noted divines are expected.

Bardstown's base ball team came here Monday and defeated the Lebanon team by a score of 12 to 2. Notwithstanding the fact that several imported players gave our team assistance, it seemed that everything happened to their disadvantage and this, joined with the superior playing of the visiting team, made our boys easy victims.

The scramble for the appointment as successor of Judge Patteson is on in earnest. We have it from a reliable source that two applicants have gone to St. Louis to interview Gov. Beckham in regard to the matter. A special election will be called for November to fill the vacancy and from the indications several candidates will be in the field. The Governor will appoint some one to serve until that time.

Safeguard the Children

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred however that could not be cured by timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For Sale by C J Haydon.

"Then It Rained."

All towns have "knockers," but it was evident at Hood's Park last Monday that if any of the Lebanon base ball team belonged to that class they were sadly out of practice. The Bardstown aggregation of ball tossers assisted by George Colvin and Ben Medley of Springfield's crack battery, took the locals, under the leadership of Chester Phillips and Bob Cleaver into camp, and what the former club accomplished was enough to send the deep dyed rooters of Lebanon to the "tall uncut" from the start to finish and the story is easily told in the score. 12 to 3 George Colvin pitched a great game and the Lebanon batters couldn't connect with his curves and when they did it was impossible to get the ball past Bardstown's star shortstop, Ernest Fulton. And thus the game dragged through, rather dull for our enthusiasts. However Brown, who pitched for Lebanon, did well, and nearly all of Bardstown's 12 scores were made on errors. Lebanon was very confident of winning, and before the game was called very few, if any, of the Bardstown rooters thought of carrying off the victory. If they had, 'what a killing they could have made." but perhaps they were troubled by recollections of the past The day was an ideal one for a ball game, the sun remaining behind the clouds, and a few minutes after the game was over the rain fell in torrents. One of the largest crowds ever seen at the park witnessed the game and the promoters were a few dollars to the good.—Lebanon Enterprise.

Had to Sight Them

A farmer living near Guthrie, Ky., employed a family of Swedes who had lately come to this country, to work on his farm. These people could not speak a word of English and the contract was made through an agent. After they had been installed in their new quarters the farmer took the man and his two sons to the field to hoe corn. When the noon hour arrived the farmer's wife rand the bell for the hands to come to dinner, but the Swedes worked on. Then she blew a horn long and loud, but the Swedes worked on. She sent one of her boys to tell them dinner was ready, but the Swedes could not understand and kept on working. Finally she sent the boy back with a biscuit on one hand and a slice of ham in the other. This had the desired effect, for as soon as they saw the food and the boy pointing to the house they dropped their hoes and made a break for the farm house. After this it was only necessary for one of the farmer's children to appear in the field with a cold biscuit when the Swedes would drop everything and start for the house.

Increase in School Per Capita

It is reported that Superintendent of Public Instruction Fuqua says the per capita of the schools of the State this year will be between $3.25 and $3.50, which will be a big increase.

Last year the per capita was $2.54 and a jump to $3.25 or more will be quite a large increase. It will mean a handsome addition to the pay of the county teachers, whose renumeration is by no means what it should be.

Receipt For Kissing

Origin of "Me Too."

All sorts of origins have been given for the "Me Too" story, but it was sprung first in the fashionable central New York summer resort and this was the manner of its springing:

Mrs. Olive Elwood, counted the brightest woman in Otsego county, the home of Fenimore Cooper, was sitting on her porch in Richfield Springs reading the story of Roscoe Conkling's defection from the United States senate because Garfield insisted on naming a man distasteful to Conklin as collector of the port of New York. Then Mrs. Elwood read how Senator Thomas C. Platt had followed the overshadowing figure of Conkling out of the senate. As the woman read a great hulking Indian passed the gate. He was followed by an undersized squaw.

"Baskets to sell," howled the brave.

"Me, too," meekly echoed the squaw.

Mrs. Elwood turned like a flash to a friend, "That squaw is Tom Platt," she said, and "Me Too" Platt he has been to this day.

This reminiscence has been revived by the death last week of Mrs. Elwood.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Closed Up.

As shown by the letter of Mr. M. F. Johnson, Superintendent of the Kentucky Horticultural display at the St. Louis World's Fair, the display has been sold out and the department closed up. In the absence of any explanation or reason for this action, the course of the Kentucky Commissioners seems an outrage upon the fruit industry of the State. This action is not altogether a surprise, however, in view of some earlier incidents in the management of Kentucky exhibits. Just before the opening of the Exposition the Commissioners practically abolished the office of Superintendent of the Agricultural Department, and eliminating that display of Kentucky's products. A creditable display had been secured. All this labor and expense now goes for nothing so far as exhibiting to the world Kentucky's farm and orchard products. Mr. Johnson's letter indicates that the fruit display was simply gobbled up and sold to pay the expenses of extravagant social functions and "blow-outs" at the Kentucky building. From a farmer's standpoint it was supposed that the hundred thousand dollars appropriated from the taxes paid by the people was to exhibit Kentucky's material resources, from field, orchard and mine. We do not feel that Kentuck's hospitality or social standing is especially on trial. Those features are well established and known to the world. If Kentucky's agricultural and horticultural exhibits can be sacrificed on the altar of social functions only, may it not be possible that her live stock exhibits may go the same way. We hope the Kentucky Commissioners may have some satisfactory explanation to relieve the conclusion necessarily drawn from the information given in Mr. Johnson's letter.—Farmers Home Journal.

Cured of Bright's Disease

Mr. Robert C. Burke, Elnora, N. Y., writes: "Before I started to use Foley's Kidney Cure I had to get up from twelve to twenty times a night and I was all bloated up with dropsy and my eyesight was so impaired I could scarcely see one of my family across the room. I had given up hope of living when a friend recommended Foley's Kidney Cure. One 50c bottle worked wonders and before I had taken the third bottle the dropsy had gone as well as all other symptoms of Bright's disease." Sold by Wood & Campbell.

Curious Freak

COLUMBUS, O., (Special.) "It's a freak," said the proprietor of an E Town st bird and dog store who is in the busines almost as much from his love for animals as in the hope of profit. It should never have been born.

The animal is a well developed specimen of coach dog, save for the head, which is that of a hog. Someone discovered the animal somewhere north of Columbus. It is now about three months old.

The body is distinctly marked with the black and white spots of a coach dog. The hair is short as that of a mouse and almost as fine. At the neck begins the change, and the bristly, sandy hair stands up like a brush.

The nose is long, the eyes small with stubby lashes, and the head entirely that of a shoat. When it reached the store it was puny and sickly. Since then it has developed rapidly.

ManZan is certainly a specific for Piles. This new discovery is put up in collapsible tube, with nozzle, to applied where most needed. Stops the pain instantly and cures. Sold by Haydon's Pharmacy.

The Way is Hard

An exchange very truthfully says: "The man who handles the local department of a newspaper learns after due experience not to expect very many thanks for a column of pleasant things but he knows as surely as come the seasons that a single line in which there is unintentional mistakes will cause some one to be heard. Also that when he has made pleasant mention 999 times of some person, place or thing, but on the 1000th time fails to do so he must not expect to be forgiven. The omission may have been from accident, inadvertence or even an entire lack of knowledge—it matters not. That single fact remains that he will be judged on that. He may say good things about some business man for weeks, but let him make some mistake and the good things said are forgotten and that man's business is denied him."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tume. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

After purchasing about fifty mares and three stallions in Fayette and adjoining counties, Mr. Speed left for Missouri, where he will make other purchases.—Kentucky Farm Breeder.

Doctors Said He Would Not Live

Peter Fry, Woodruff, Pa., writes: "After doctoring for two years with the best physicians in Whaynesburg, and still getting worse, the doctors advised me it had any business to attend to I had better attend to it at once as I could not possibly live another month as there was no cure for me. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me by a friend, and I immediately sent my son to the store for it and after taking three bottles I began to get better and continued to improve until I was entirely well." In the rush of political and other news matter close at home we must not forget that the war still goes on. A dispatch reaching St. Petersburg from a Russian correspondent at Mukden says the Japanese attacked Russian positions near Port Arthur on the night of July 11, and were repulsed with enormous loss. The dispatch says the Japanese lost not less than 30,000 killed or wounded by the explosion of Russian mines. The story is not confirmed. Admiral Togo reports to Tokio that his torpedo boats attacked the Russian guard ship at Port Arthur on the night of July 11, but the result has not been ascertained beyond the fact that the torpedo boats returned intact. Reports from the land operations indicate that the Russian forces are still retreating and that the Japanese will occupy New Cwhang at an early date.

The Democrats have named their ticket. At the St. Louis convention Judge Alton B. Parker was nominated for President. Judge Parker who had been silent up to that time on the financial question, created a sensation by telegraphing to the convention after the nomination that he stood for the gold standard, and would accept the nomination with that understanding. For Vice President the convention nominated Ex-Senator Henry Davis, of West Virginia., who is eighty-one years old, a millionaire and a railroad magnate. The ticket is regarded as one made up to please Wall Street and the moneyed powers of the East.

They have an original way up in the mountains of settling differences between candidates. In the Eleventh Congressional district by a vote of 53 to 25 the teachers of Laurel county decided that D. C. Edwards should make the race for the Republican nomination for Congress against Dr. Hunter. Capt. Ed Parker accepted the result, and will make speeches for Edwards.

Where He Made His Start.

A squire in a certain town had just finished marrying a young couple and proceeded in a paternal way to give them good, solid advice. Turning to the bridegroom, he said:

The bridegroom listened respectfully and then remarked:

"Well, judge, we might as well begin on you." And he proceeded to give the squire 50 cents for tying the knot.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"Stonewall's" Comment.

At a council of generals early in the civil war one of them remarked that Major —— was wounded and would be unable to perform a certain duty for which he had been suggested. "Wounded!" said old Stonewall Jackson. "If that is really so I think it must have been by an accidental discharge of his duty."

A Doubtful Compromise.

"I've worn out six pairs of shoes," said the collector, "coming after you with this bill."

"Don't let that bother you," replied the editor. "I've got an old pair that'll just fit you."

The Pace.

"You hear so many people talking of 'the pace that kills.' I wonder what they mean exactly?"

"Well, it depends. There's the messenger boy's pace, for instance. That merely kills time." — Philadelphia Press.

TALE OF A "SWAGGER STICK."

Lieutenant Reed Presents Cherished Caribou Horn Baton to Miss Roosevelt.

Lieutenant Reed, Sixth Cavalry, United States Army, a dapper officer of the Jefferson Guards staff, is minus a treasured "swagger stick," which he does not mourn greatly; and incidentally he is the envy of all the officers of the guard.

Miss Alice Roosevelt is the proud possessor of Lieutenant Reed's swagger stick. She came into possession through the Kentucky gallantry of the young officer. In place of the caribou stick Lieutenant Reed now sports an ordinary carved an umbrella handle, sawed off to the proper abbreviated dimensions of the real thing.

When Miss Roosevelt was doing the Fair it became Lieutenant Reed's proud privilege one day to escort the President's daughter through the Palace of Agriculture. He had with him his inseparable stick. Miss Roosevelt admired the slender baton of polished caribou horn with its silver head and ferule, and Lieutenant Reed told her its history.

He told her that it stamped the twirler of it as a member of the "Order of the Caribou Stick," because it could rightfully be carried only by those officers who had seen service in the Philippines prior to the declaration of peace, July 4, 1902.

Miss Roosevelt admired the swagger stick all the more after she had heard its history, and during the tour of the palace she carried it. When the trip through the building was ended she handed the stick back to the young officer, but he gallantly refused to accept it, and presented it to her.—St. Louis Republic

QUALITIES OF AMBER

MANY POWERS HAVE BEEN CREDITED TO THE YELLOW GUM.

The Belief In Its Ability to Ward Off Diseases of the Throat—Used as a Charm Against Various Kinds of Misfortune In Olden Times.

"I want to buy a string of amber beads," said a nervous young man to a clerk in a large cigar store in Nassau street recently. "I don't know just where to get them, but I understand you people keep them."

"Sorry, my good man, but we are all out of them at present, but I can tell you where you can get them." And the clerk gave the young man the address of a jewelry firm near by.

"It's strange," said the clerk, "how many people come in here to buy amber beads. We used to keep a stock on hand, but there was no money in it for us, and we gave it up." The clerk was well informed on the subject and went on to tell something about amber that was interesting indeed. "You know, it is an old superstition," he continued, "that a string of amber beads around a child's throat will keep off throat troubles and especially croup. Doctors, of course, poohpooh the idea, but mothers will swear by the beads. Whether there is really anything in it or not I cannot tell, but I must say that people testify to the fact that these beads do wonderful good in throat troubles, and it is really facts that count.

"You know, the idea is an old one, and amber was known before the Christian era. History says that Poppaea made Nero dress the amphitheater at Rome with amber and had broken pieces strewn in the arena to prevent the infectious odor of the common people from reaching her when at the games during an epidemic. The Turks were the first to use amber as a mouthpiece for pipes, owing to its alleged quality of not carrying infection. Such mouthpieces were first fitted to the public pipes—those which were passed from mouth to mouth.

"Few people know where amber really is found, but most of it comes from Prussia, and some from France and Norway. Gathering of amber is no child's play, but is fraught with privation, hard work and danger. The mother or whose baby wears a string of beads knows little of the risks that were run to get the yellow gum. In olden times the amber used to be gathered after storms, the heavy seas having loosened the wealth which lay at the bottom of the shore water. The men would then venture up to their necks in the surf, and with long poles, having hooks on the end, they would rake up the pieces of amber and carry them in to shore.

"This is now much simplified, and we no longer wait for storms, but instead divers are employed, who go to the bottom of the sea and drench the rich deposits. When the amber has been washed and the pebbles have been picked out, it is passed into revolving drums with a certain amount of sand, which scrubs off the outer surface. It is then sorted into about a dozen different varieties, according to color and shape. Fine pieces are used for smokers' goods. Round pieces go to make up beads and fragments for varnish.

"The size used to be an important commercial factor. Now it plays an unimportant part. It is just as easy now to make a large mouthpiece as it was formerly a small one. A few years ago a manufacturer as an advertisement made a cigarette mouthpiece that was over fifty inches in length. Years ago the price for such a big stem would have been enormous, but now it is considerably reduced. The pale pieces of amber are bought by the pipe manufacturers of Turkey and Egypt. The light, whitish colors are used for ornaments in Italy, and the finest grades of clouded green, gray and blue are sent to the United States, England and France.

"What is amber? Well, that is not so easy to answer. Men of science say that ages ago, long before Earl Eric carried at his side the mighty sword, with the hilt of amber, that gave him warming of the storm and fight, there stood on the Samland a mighty forest of conifers, whose descendants today are found in California and Oregon. These trees piled up around their roots the golden gum, and when the sea subsequently wiped out the forest the amber was buried in its depths, from which it is now secured.

"Amber can be traced through the world as a love philter, a charm against all kinds of illness, sorcery, witchcraft, poison and blindness. Hundreds of unknown insects and plants have been found imbedded in the yellow gum. Strange to say, amber cannot be counterfeited any more than diamonds can. Amber used to be very fashionable for jewelry, but now it is only used as cigarettes and for warding off disease."—New York Herald.

Five Good Weather Rules.

An officer of the weather bureau at Washington has collected a great number of weather proverbs. He says that these proverbs forecast the weather accurately, and he thinks that they should therefore be memorized by farmers, sailors and all such persons as are out of reach of the daily weather reports.

Rain before seven, fine before eleven.
A mackerel sky and mares' tails
Make lofty ships carry low sails.
If the rain comes before the wind,
Lower your topsails and take them in;
If the wind comes before the rain,
Lower your topsails and hoist them again.
A morning red, wind or rain dread.
A circle round the moon bringeth rain soon.

Tickled With a Feather.

"I never knew any one who could be so tickled with a feather as my wife."
"Ticklish, is she?"
"Not usually, but this was an ostrich feather she bought at a bargain sale."—Philadelphia Ledger.

MYSTERIES OF NATURE.

Some of the Many Things That Find No Ready Explanation.

Whatever opens up new doors or windows for us into the world about us, whatever widens the field of our interests and sympathies, has some sort of value, says John Burroughs in Country Life in America. But much of the so called nature study opens no new doors or windows. It affords no mental satisfaction or illumination or aesthetic pleasure. It is mainly interesting with dry, unimportant facts and details. Do you know the edelweiss flowers or our own matchless arbutus after you have merely analyzed and classified them? No more than you know a man after having weighed and measured him. The function of things is always interesting. What do they do? How do they pay their way in the rigid economy of nature? How do they survive? Why do the roots of trees flow through the ground like streams of molten metal, often separating and uniting again, while the branches are thrust out in right lines or curves?

Why is our common yellow birch more often than any other tree planted upon a rock? Why do oaks or chestnuts so often spring up where a pine or hemlock forest has been cleared away? Why does lightning so commonly strike a hemlock tree or a pine or an oak and rarely or never a birch? Why does the bolt sometimes scatter the tree about and at others only plow a channel down its trunk? Why does the bumblebee complain so loudly when working upon certain flowers? Why does the honeybee lose the sting when it stings a person, while the wasp, the hornet and the bumblebee do not? How does the chimney swift sew fast the twigs it builds its nest with? From what does the horse make its paste?

I have never been greatly interested in spiders, but I have always wanted to know how a certain spider managed to stretch her cable squarely across the road in the woods about my home from the ground.

The Lone Hand

There are many traces of old John A. Murrell still to be found in this section of Kentucky; but many of these historic marks have been neglected by the writers of the country. Of late years there has been a perfect deluge of books and stories which deal with hair lifting incidents, detective tales, and things of that sort, conjured from fertile out rather perverted imaginations and yet these ingenious fellows might have found in real life stories that would have shamed the wildest of their dreams. Take the case of Murrell for instance. There are many unpublished incidents of his life, and he has left many queer things behind him as reminders of the fact that he once inhabited the earth. It has been said that Murrell and his gang never operated in Nelson county, but an aged and reputable citizen from over the river was in town the other day and said that he had heard his father, who died at an advanced age, speak of the old outlaw often. He said Murrell and his gang often rendezvoused in the knobs and for years an interesting relic of the outlaw could be seen in the hills near Holy Cross. There was a lone pine tree standing right at the base of a hill, and a short distance away a spring bubbled out of the side of a hill and flowed down through the bottoms. Probably 100 yards west of the pine tree was an Indian mound, a relic of the time when the red man was monarch of that section. Nailed to one of the limbs of the pine was a wooden hand. While there was no proof of the fact, the belief was entertained for many years that this hand was put there by Murrell. It was one of his rendezvous. The hand was crudely made of pine, or cedar, and was wonderfully persistent in holding its form. It pointed back towards the hills, and no doubt in the days of Murrell it meant a great deal to the outlaw and his associates in crime. It was probably adjustable in the days of Murrell, and was used by members of the gang to convey messages when they were scattered on their plundering expeditions. The limb on which the hand was nailed was some distance from the ground, on account of the growth of the pine, and it could not be reached by human hands without climbing the tree. No man in that section of the country cared to disturb the hand. It was a relic to which the citizens pointed with some degree of pride, and so they just left it there, pointing up in the hills, and probably indicating the last route of the outlaw when he passed for the last time from the lone pine at the foot of the ridge until it became decayed and was beaten from its fastenings by the elements.—Bardstown Standard.

Annual Feet Washing

A special from Owensville says: Next Sunday at the residence of Elder James Moore, near Carrington's Rock, this county, an interesting ceremony will be observed. This is the date set for the annual foot washing of the Baptists, to which church Elder Moore belongs. For forty years on one Sunday in each year this ceremony is gone through with at the residence of Elder Moore, and each year the gathering to witness this peculiar evidence of brotherly love grows larger. Next Sunday people from all parts of Bath and Menifee counties will attend the services.

The services begin with songs, prayers and religious exercises. After these are done, bowls filled with water are produced, and each person washes his or her neighbor's feet in the water and then dries them. This service is held to emulate the washing of the deciples' feet by Jesus Christ. Formerly Elder Moore did all the washing himself, but the shadows of ninety-eight years are upon him, and he is no longer able to perform this act of brotherly love to his flock. Dinner is spread on the grass under the treesat these services and hundreds of people have attended.

Elder Moore is ninety-eight years old, and has been a minister of the Baptist church almost seventy years. He has held meetings in almost every county in the State and is widely known. Over 3,000 converts have been baptized by him, and over 2,000 couples have been united in marriage by him. His mind and hearing are almost perfect, but his eyesight has failed. His wife is about ninety years old. Both are in fairly good health.

Not a Patent Medicine.

No one should confound Hyomei with patent medicines that are advertised to cure catarrh. It is as far superior to them all as the diamond is more valuable than cheap glass. Their composition is secret, but Hyomei gives it formula to all reputable physicians.

Is it not foolish to try and cure catarrh by swallowing tablets or liquids? The only natural way to cure this disease and all other diseases of the respiratory organs is to breathe Hyomei.

This treatment has been so successful, curing 99 per cent. of all who have used it, that Hyomei is now sold by Wood & Campbell under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure. You run no risk whatever in buying Hyomei. If it did not possess unusual power to cure, it could not be sold upon this plan.

Not Fatal.

No Matter What Doctors Say—We Know That Heart Trouble in Many Cases Can Be Cured.

There are seven main features of heart disease, viz.: (1) Weakness or Debility; (2) Rheumatism or Neuralgia; (3) Valvular Disorder; (4) Dilation; (5) Enlargement; (6) Fatty Degeneration; (7) Dropsy.

Doctors in many evidence will prove thousands of so-called "incurables" have been absolutely cured by Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

Patients often have no idea their disease is heart trouble, but ascribe it to Indigestion, Liver Complaint, etc.

Here are some of the symptoms: Shortness of breath after exercise, Smothering Spells, Pain in Chest, left Shoulder and arm, Discomfort in Lying on one side, Fainting Spells, Nervous Cough, Swelling of Feet and Ankles, Paleness of Face and Lips, Palpitation, Nightmare, Irregular Pulse.

"I have great faith in Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and speak of its merits whenever opportunity presents. I can now go up and down stairs with ease, where three years ago I could hardly walk one block." One year later—"I am still in good health. The Heart Cure did so much for me, that I find it a far greater healing than a cheering tonic to be."—S. D. YOUNG, D. D., 697 North Pine St., Natchez, Miss.

A VERSATILE PRODUCT.

Few Things That Grow Capable of So Many Uses as Corn.

Probably few things that grow are capable of so many uses or are so completely used as corn. The grain is used for food both for human beings and cattle, while the stalks are used as fodder for cattle. The pith of the stalk is used in the manufacture of smokeless powder, in the manufacture of high grade varnish and in the manufacture of paper. The woody portions are used in the manufacture of a cheap quality of paper.

As a food corn is supplied in many forms. The most familiar are as meal, hominy and grits. Practically all the starch that is used in the United States is made from corn. Immense quantities are also used in the manufacture of glucose, which, among other things, enters largely into the manufacture of beer as a substitute for malt.

A large quantity of corn is used annually in the manufacture of whisky, and nearly 15,000,000 bushels are used every year in the manufacture of college spirits and alcohol. Even in the manufacture of these products nothing is lost. The glucose and other residues in the manufacture of starch, glucose, whisky and alcohol are used as cattle food.

THE GLUTEUS MAXIMUS.

It Is the Strongest Muscle in the Human Body.

The strongest muscle in the human body is the gluteus maximus. Hardly a movement of the lower extremities can be made without bringing it into play, but its chief duty is to balance the pelvis on the head of the thigh bone. It assists in carrying the leg forward and outward in walking, and without its aid any movement of the body from the hips would be impossible.

As it is the strongest, so is it also the largest muscle we possess. In the full grown man it can exert a force of 310 pounds to the square inch of its section in the thickest part.

Another strong muscle, which is situated in the calf of the leg, is capable of sustaining seven times the weight of the body. The great tendon which is inserted in the heel bone, called the tendon achilles, is also of singular strength. When removed from the body, it has contained a weight of 2,000 pounds, yet sometimes by the sudden action of the muscles of the calf, to which it belongs, it has been snapped across.

PERMANENT MAGNETS.

The Simplest Way of Magnetizing a Bar of Steel.

The simplest way of magnetizing a bar of steel is that known as "single touch." The bar to be magnetized is laid on the table, and the pole of a powerful magnet is rubbed from ten to twenty times along its length, always in the same direction. If the north pole of the magnet is employed the end of the bar first touched will also become a north pole, while the opposite end, at which the magnet is lifted before returning, will be a south pole.

There are other and more complicated methods, known as "divided touch" and "double touch," in which two and even four magnets are employed.

A steel bar can also be magnetized by placing it within a coil of insulated wire, through which a galvanic current is circulating. The magnetism induced in this way, however, is weak compared with that which can be procured of the same strength of current is employed through the intervention of an electro-magnet.

"Hamlet" at Elsinore.

Shakespearean commentators have wondered why the poet placed the scenes of "Hamlet" at Elsinore, in the island of Zealand, whereas the Danish prince lived and died in Jutland. But the municipal authorities at Elsinore discovered in their archives that an English company was acting in that town in 1587 or 1588, and among the names of the actors are several of those who were acting with Shakespeare in London in 1589. Obviously these actors must have talked about their adventures in Denmark, and Shakespeare became well acquainted with Elsinore and when he wrote "Hamlet" naturally placed the scene in a place which he knew by description rather than in a place of which he knew nothing.

The General Utility Consul.

In those larger towns in Turkey where England is represented by a consul that official is looked upon as a sort of court of appeal by Christians, Armenians, Bulgarians, Macedonians and even Jews, who have probably never heard an English word spoken, will appeal to the British consul when in difficulties, and he rarely refuses his kind offices. In ordinary cases his unofficial backing of the "ghaours" is effective.

Curiosity.

"Professor," said Mrs. Noozey to the crank professor of archaeology, "what do you consider the most curious thing you ever saw?"

"Woman unquestionably," he replied.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Moonshine.

An old lady, having been told of the theory of the moon being inhabited, remarked, with emphasis: "Nonsense! What becomes of the people when there is nothing but a little streak of it left?"

Appropriate.

CAUSTIC CARLYLE.

His Contempt For Great Men Was Subject to Modification.

Carlyle's opinion of Herbert Spencer as "the most unreading ass in Christendom" must, of course, be final in conjunction with Carlyle's derision for mankind in general. "Mostly fools," he cheerfully thought of us all. Darwin, we know, he would not have at any price—not a word of him. Cardinal Newman, he estimated, had "the brain of a medium sized rabbit." Ruskin was a bottle of soda water. "A bad clever man" was his sum up of another eminent writer.

But these hostile phrases were subject to considerable modification if the man against whom they were aimed came near enough to Carlyle to do him a personal favor, even to pay him a personal compliment. Disraeli, whom he had described as a mountebank dancing upon John Bull's stomach, offered Carlyle a baronetcy and elicited from him, together with a refusal of the title, many tributes to his magnanimity. He said very little about Disraeli henceforth in print, and in private he spoke of him only as "a very dignified comical fellow."—London Chronicle.

THE ONION CURE.

A Remedy Which Is Claimed to Be Infallible In Pneumonia.

This remedy, which is claimed to be infallible, was formulated many years ago by a well known physician in New England, who never lost a patient by this scourge: Take six or ten onions, according to size, and chop fine. Put in a large spider over a hot fire, adding about the same quantity of rye meal and vinegar to form a stiff paste. Stir thoroughly and simmer five or ten minutes. Put into a cotton flannel cloth enough to cover the lungs and apply to the chest just as hot as the patient can bear it. In about ten minutes change the poultice, and this continue reheating and applying, and in a few hours the patient will be out of danger. And just here a word of caution. In applying this or any other poultice care must be exercised not to let the patient get chilled during the changing process. Have the hot one all ready to go on before the cold one is removed, and make the exchanges as nearly and quick man there is not a moment's exposure of the body surface, which becomes exceedingly sensitive to a chill.

POSITION DURING SLEEP.

The main object of sleep is that every organ of the body should have perfect rest. The brain, the lungs and the heart have been, not inappropriately, called the "tripod of life," as upon them hangs the prosperity of the whole frame; hence we slightly raise the head to check the flow of blood to the brain and more or less quickly find out the position of greatest ease for lungs and heart.

This will be found by sleeping for the greater part of the time on the right side, for nearly two-thirds of the heart is on the left of the medial line, and the apex points closely to the smaller left lung; hence the fullest and freest play possible should be given to the left side.

A quiet poise, diminished respiration and refreshing rest are all combined when upon windows, moderate warmth and the fading heart work together. It is often best to court sleep on the left side and turn to the right before going off.

A Philanthropist.

Modern advertising can cope even with the etiquette of courts. A London journal tells us that a young American woman wished to be presented at the court of the king of Saxony. The high officials, having inquired into her social standing at home, objected. They represented to her that the king could scarcely receive the daughter of a retail bootmaker. The young woman cabled home and told her father the situation. The next morning she received his answer:

That solved the difficulty. She was presented as the daughter of an eminent philanthropist.

A Doctor's Visit.

More patients become dissatisfied because they are not visited often enough than because they are required to pay for excess of services. One of the most grateful families that I ever knew was one that had just paid a young medical practitioner for fourteen visits made between 5 and 11 p. m. of a single day, when two visits would have been amply sufficient. Small wonder that some of the younger men yield to this temptation and shortly become known to the profession as repeaters. But these soon lose caste.—The World Today.

Lesson In Modern Finance.

"Pa," said the son of the captain of industry, "what is being recreant to one's trust?"

"Not increasing the capital stock every time the public can be hypnotized into buying a few more shares for the benefit of the people who hold the bonds."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Foresight.

De Garry—As you intend to marry her, why did you consent to her riding a bicycle when you are so opposed to it? Merritt—Well, I knew she would have her way in the end, and I calculated that by giving in now her father would have to pay for the bicycle.

Made Him Low Spirited.

Near me where we live in Scotland there is a farmer who has had considerable experience in wives. He has married and buried four. After the death of the last wife a friend of ours called over one Sunday afternoon to see and condole with the poor man, who, report said, had been an exceedingly kind and indulgent husband to all his wives. He found the farmer walking listlessly about his deserted garden, and, sympathy having unchained his tongue, he exclaimed: "Save me! What with bringing the wives hame and pittem them awa I am sair hadden doon" (low spirited).—London Gentlewoman.

A Wrong Idea.

A certain officious person once blustered into the office of W. J. Henderson, the music critic, and began to tell him what was the matter with Jean de Reszke's interpretation of Wagner's "Tristan."

"In the first place," said the caller, in confident tones, "he's got the wrong idea."

Mr. Henderson looked at him a moment. "Well," he remarked, "he got his idea from Wagner. Where did you get yours?"

Whistling Women.

"It's a peculiar fact," remarked the observing youth, "that only one woman in a thousand can whistle."

"Nothing peculiar about that," rejoined the man with the silent hair. "As long as a woman can talk she doesn't care to whistle."—Illustrated Bits.

Financial Ability.

"So young Smith has come into a fortune. Do you think he has the making of a financier?"

The Eminent Kidney and Bladder Specialist.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidneys poison the blood and attack the vital organs, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Then the richness of the blood—albumen—leaks out and the sufferer has Bright's Disease, the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the new discovery is the true specific for kidney, bladder and urinary troubles. It has cured thousands of apparently hopeless cases, after all other efforts have failed. At druggists in fifty-cent and dollar sizes. A sample bottle sent free by mail. Also a book telling about Swamp-Root and its wonderful cures. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. and mention this paper.

WHY ICE STAYS ON TOP.

Water the Sole Exception to an Otherwise Universal Law.

It is one of the most extraordinary things in this extraordinary world, writes Henry Martyn Hart in the Outlook, that water should be the sole exception to the otherwise universal law that all cooling bodies contract and therefore increase in density.

Water contracts as its temperature falls and therefore becomes heavier and sinks until it reaches 39 degrees. At this temperature water is the heaviest. This is the point of its maximum density. From this point it begins to expand. Therefore in winter, although the surface may be freezing at a temperature of 32 degrees, the water at the bottom of the pool is six or seven degrees warmer.

Suppose that water, like everything else, had gone on contracting as it cooled until it reached the freezing point. The heaviest water would have sunk to the lowest place and there become ice. Although it is true that eight pints of water become nine pints of ice, and therefore enlarges itself, showing above the surface an eighth of their bulk, still had the water when at the bottom turned into ice the stones would have locked it in their interstices and held it there, and before the winter was over the whole pool would become solid ice, and all the poor fish would be entombed in clear, beautiful crystal.

JAPAN'S GOD OF WAR.

Hachiman, Strange to Say, Is a Lover of the Peaceful Dove.

Hachiman, the god of war in Japan, strange to say, loves a dove, a bird symbolized in the word of peace and not of war. Go to any temple or shrine where Hachiman is worshiped, and you will find a great many doves cooing either on the roof of the temple or on the ground below. The tablet on which the name of the god is inscribed begins with the kiragraph of "Hachi," the two strokes of which are intended to picture a pair of doves, the female on the right and the male on the left. Doves are Hachiman's favorite birds, messengers by which he sends good tidings of peace and love.

Hachiman never fights merely to satiate his thirst for blood. He fights battles for peace. He never makes sacrifices of lives so that he may glory over the conquered. He is a great enemy of tyrants and oppressors. He is ever ready to help those who are oppressed and persecuted. He fights wars of justice. He wishes to see justice done on all sides. His banners bear inscriptions conveying the thought of righteousness and justice.

Invisible will be the fate of any who venture to violate the peace and welfare of the world, for Hachiman in his righteous wrath will crush down such a one under his mighty feet.—Chicago News.
